

The Villa was built in 1931 as living quarters for the Warsaw ZOO director. In its cellars many escapees from the ghetto found shelter. Right from there lead an underground tunnel, that served as an escape route. At Antonina's musical signal (usually an excerpt from Offenbach's La belle Hélène), the escapees left the Villa and hid among bushes between the aviaries.